Art Unit: 1745

Claims 1, 6 and 17-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 1 is confusing because it recites “at least one locking piece on each side of the case”, but there is no indication of how many sides the case includes. The disclosed locking pieces (1012A, etc.) appear to be extensions of a single side, which is the bottom, and are located on opposite edges thereof, adjacent to lateral sides of the casing, as seen in figure 1, but not on all sides, as would be implied by the term “on each side”. Claims 6 and 17-28 depend from claim 1, and would thus likewise be indefinite.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Takeshita et al. (US 2006/0068280), Tsurumaru et al. (US 5,824,431), Mitsui et al. (US 5,626,979), Sasaki et al. (US 5,434,018) and Copper et al. (US 4,943,498) disclose battery packs attached to electronic devices by way of grooves or projections.

Claims 1, 6 and 17-28 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action. The prior art, cited either herein, by applicant, or in the PCT search report, does not disclose a battery case that includes a locking piece extending in a width direction from the case, forming a locking recess with an overhanging surface of the case, and a projection extending between the locking piece to the overhanging surface, while extending in the width direction less than the locking piece.

The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.
